2 The site here referred to, on the south side of "Rattounraw" and west side of the High Street, can be identified as part of that "bargage" which "Gilbertus de Camera," in his urgent necessity, and for his sustenance, sold to Nicholas Sprowll, in the year 1263. The property was acquired from John Stewart of Bowkous, as narrated in protocol No. 2431, and is there described as a tenement sometime pertaining to Sir John Masoun. Sir John, who was a vicar of the choir, likewise owned a tenement on the south side of Greyfriars Wynd. See No. 2283.

1 See protocol No. 2131. Some particulars regarding Mr. Adam Colquhoun, who was successively rector of Kingarth, Govan, and Stobo, will be found in Sir William Fraser's "Chiefs of Colquhoun," ii. pp. 269, 265-9. "Mr. John Colquhoun, rector of Stobo," is witness to a protocol dated 13 October, 1555 (No. 1490), and he is likewise so designated in protocols dated in 1569-5 (Nos. 1309-9, 1494, 1473). In one of these protocols (No. 1494) it is stated that the proceedings took place in the manse of the rector of Stobo. "Mr. Archibald Colquhoun" is designated successor of the rectory of Stobo in a protocol dated 28 February, 1557-8 (No. 905), and in a charter dated in July, 1581, he is designated rector of Stobo (Reg. Mag. Sig. v. No. 291). The manse was probably fued by either John or Archibald Colquhoun to John Colquhoun of Kilnardinnie, in whose family it remained till sold to Robert Cleland, merchant in Glasgow, from whom it was transmitted to Agnes Cleland (daughter of George Cleland of Glenhaupt) and John Cleland, her husband, as mentioned in crown charter, dated 5th April, 1619 (Reg. Most part, if not the whole, of the manse site is now enclosed within the prison boundary.

2684. GLEN—REID, SPOUSES. 13 March, 1584-5, 8 a.m.

Mr. John Allasoun and Margaret Lowthecan, spouses, granted in feu-farm to William Glen, baker, citizen, and Jean Reid, spouses, a particate or piece of land next the seuch of the Green, extending to 32 ells in length and 13 ells in breadth; part of two rigs of arable land, lying t.c., in the croft of St. Tenw, between the Green or common of Glasgow on the south and west, the lands of q. George Brownsyde on the east, and Woodside, under a charter granted by archbishop Boyd on 13 November, and confirmed by King James VI, 10 December, 1579 (Reg. Mag. Sig. iv. No. 2938). The rentaller of Woodside was, perhaps, the George Elphinstone whose name, in conjunction with that of Marion Alderton, his spouse, frequently occurs in the protocols. In the above protocol (No. 2963) Woodside was again given to a younger son, but it reverted, as before, to the elder. George Elphinstone, who granted the charter mentioned in the text, died shortly afterwards (see No. 2707), and was succeeded by his eldest son, who, as Sir George Elphinstone of Blythswood, got a crown charter of the combined lands of Blythswood, Woodside, and Gorbalis, on 27 August, 1595 (see MS. protocol by Archibald Hegate, 9 February, 1595-6). At present, part of Woodside is included in the Kelvingrove Park, and other portions are occupied by buildings and streets, the original designation of the lands being commemorated by Woodside Crescent and Terrace.

1 On 25 May, 1513, Mr. Adam Colquhoun, rector of Stobo, was rentalled in the 33 s. 4d. land of "Woodsyd," vacant by the decease of Mr. Thomas Muirhead, his predecessor in the rectory of Stobo (Diocesan Registers, i. p. 49). On 29 December, 1515, the rental book records "Elizabeth Colquhoun rentellit in xxxiiij. iiijd. land off Woodsyd, post dolum Magistri Aide Colquhoun" (ib. p. 74). It is stated by Sir William Fraser, in "The Chiefs of Colquhoun" (p. 209), that Elizabeth was the rector’s daughter; and the entry in the rental book apparently means that she was to succeed to the lands on his death. Elizabeth Colquhoun married George Elphinstone, and on 28 August, 1534, he was conjoined "in rentale with his wet, Elizabeth Colquhoun, of twa merk land and half of the Woodsyd" (ib. p. 104). On 7 March, 1556-6, George Elphinston, second son of the first George, then deceased, was, with consent of his elder brother, rentalled in the lands, "Bees Colquhoun, his mother, brawkand for hir lyne" (ib. p. 163). The elder brother, likewise named George (in accordance with a practice not then uncommon) was rentalled in the lands of Gorbalis in 1554 (ib. p. 154; Protocols Nos. 185, 187, 490, 1466), and was feudally vested in both Gorbalis and

2 "Seuch," a ditch. See No. 2690.

Sasine given by Robert Rowat, bailie. 1580-5, when the erection was apparently being proceeded with, Coningham, acting as vicar general for archbishop Bladder, then abroad, required Mr. John Gibson, rector of Rentrew, as master of work of the church, to expend money and pay the expenses of small things about the church, as the previous masters of work had done (protocol No. 91 in Diocesan Registers). A chaplain, in succession to one who was deceased, was inducted on 24 September, 1513, by delivery of the keys of the church, the bell rope, book, chalice, and ornaments of the altar (ib. No. 692). Subsequent to the Reformation, the endowments were, along with other church property and revenues, conveyed by Queen Mary’s charter to the magistrates and council, and were thereafter transferred to the college (see Rental in Manuscript Aline Universitatis, i. p. 175). It is ascertained by the conveyance of 1593, afterwards referred to, that Archibald Lyon acquired the kirk and kirkyard by a feu-charter, and that charter was probably granted by the magistrates and council, as was done in the case of the collegiate church of St. Mary (protocol No. 1), the chapel of St. Roche (No. 1674), and the church of St. Tom (No. 2465).

On 15 May, 1593, the church of Little St. Kentigern and grounds, which had been conveyed by Archibald Lyon to his daughter Marion, and her husband Donald Cunningham of Aikinhart, were sold by the latter to the town at the price of 200 marks Scots, with the privilege to the sellers of nominating two burgesses for admission. In the conveyance the property is described as "the chapell and hows callit St. Moungois chapelmarie, with kirk yairde and pertinents thairof, lyand in the east syde of the towne of Glasgow, beyond the Gallowgate brigg, betuix the landis of Dowhill on the north and the hie streit on the east pairts"; and the transfer is stated to be made "to the effect that the same chapell, house and yairde may stand and [be] convertit in to one hospital for the pair to be foundit be the sellis proveit, baillesis and coumsals, and to na uther use in all tyme coming." There were also sold to the town "the treis, both gowand and cuttif, about and in the same, to be instantlie intromettit with be the sellis proveit, baillies and coumsals to the use of the said kirk" (Original Conveyance, Inv. i. b. 23). If an hospital was actually fitted up it must soon have been abandoned, because, on 2 February, 1600, the town council directed "the half materialis of stane, tymmer, and gowand treis of Lyitill Sanct Mangois Kirk" to be taken down and removed and used for the repair of the Tron Kirk, and the site to be leased to the highest offerer (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 202). The site, however, was not disposed of till 1754, when the council sold it for the erection of an inn, the famous "Saracen Head," well known in Glasgow annals. An absurd story, found in some Glasgow histories, to the effect that, through an act of vandalism on the part of the town council, the stones of the Bishop’s castle were used in erecting the inn, seems to have originated in a mis-reading of the MS. council minute. What the town council did in the way of providing building material was to authorise the purchaser to use the stones of the adjoining East Port, then being removed as an obstruction to the thoroughfare (MS. Council Rec., xxvi., p. 466). Further particulars regarding St. Kentigern’s Kirk will be found in Glasgow Charters, i. pp. lix., clvii, dlviii.; ii. p. 454, No. 106.

1 The property specified in No. 2706 appears to form the site of an ancient chapel adjoining the tolbooth, on the north side of the Trongait. This chapel is referred to in record as early as the year 1293 (Glas. Chart. ii. p. 209; protocol No. 1961, and footnote), and is likewise noticed in a document, dated 28 October, 1426 (Liber Coll. Nostre Domine, etc., p. 214), and in another, dated 10 June, 1457 (Reg. Episc. Glasg. No. 446). The chapel seems to have been acquired by the collegiate church of St. Mary and St. Anne, founded by James Houston, on the south side of the Trongate, as on 10 February, 1555-6, Sir Christopher Knox, chaplain and prebendarie in the collegiate church, with consent of the provost and other prebendaries, and also with consent of the magistrates and council (patrons of the church), and the archbishop, granted in feu-farm to George Herbertsoun and Margaret Muire, spouses, a ruinous tenement, otherwise called the chapel, on the north side of the street of St. Tew, situated between the tolbooth of the city, the tenement sometime of David Pollok, then of David Lindsay, and the tenement of James Ischarw and John Bripps. The feu-duty payable to the chaplain and prebendaries was 11 merks yearly. A crown charter of confirmation in favour of George Herbertson and spouse was granted on 4 March, 1583-4 (Reg. Mag. Sig. v. ¹ For the reason here stated, the protocols in Archibald Hegate's first book end with No. 2740. On four of the remaining leaves in the book there has been collected some extraneous matter, of which particulars will be found in the Preface to last volume. Since that volume was issued, Mr. William Young, artist, who had noticed the sonnet printed on page xix., has shown the editor an edition of "The Cherrie and the Snae," and other poems, by Captain Alexander Montgomery, printed at Glasgow, in 1712; by Robert Sanders. At the beginning of the book is the sonnet referred to, and there called "A Sweet Sonnet to the Blessed Trinitie: by C. A. M." The author is thus identified as a west-country bard of considerable repute, whose works have often been printed. An edition of Montgomery's poems was issued by the Scottish Text Society in 1887. The poet is said to have been a son of the laird of Hazelhead, in Ayrshire, whose family at one time owned property in Glasgow, as shown by protocols Nos. 4, 1578, and 2742.

This was agreed to, security was given for justice being done, and a court was appointed to be held by the temple bailie, in David Moresoun's house, for decision of the claim (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 45, 46). Various interesting particulars regarding the Knights of St. John and their lands in Scotland will be found in a paper by Mr. John Edwards, published in the Transactions of the Glasgow Archeological Society, vol. iii. pp. 30-39.

2 The "common" referred to in No. 2886 consisted of land lying along the north bank of the river, reserved for the use of the inhabitants in connection with the river traffic. A market seems at one time to have been held there; but in 1596 the water sergeant was instructed to cause all the boats coming to the Broomielaw to proceed to the bridge and to hold the market there. (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 180). Transferred to the bridge the market was within easier reach of the town's folk, and probably better subject to the control of the magistrates, especially with regard to the collection of customs' dues. In 1600, two inhabitants of Saltoun, whose sails and boat gear the customs' tacksmen had seized at the Broomielaw, objected to the jurisdiction of the provost and bailies; and at the request of the town council the articles were restored to the objectors on their finding security to appear before competent judges (ib. p. 209).

1 Daill means a portion, and the prefix denotes the running or passing over one portion into another. Thus, in Lanark, it was resolved that the "town mair be delt amang the burgesses ... rindaill among them," beginning at a certain march and thence proceeding "akerdail about" till the whole was divided (Lanark Rec. p. 119).

¹ The visitation of the “pest” in 1585 has been referred to in protocol No. 2799. There is a blank in the council records from 27 April, 1586, till 22 October, 1588, and accordingly the protocol No. 2926, which explains how the money raised to meet the extra expenditure occasioned by the pest was repaid, supplies information not otherwise procurable. When the records resume, in 1588, there is evidence that the town was again troubled with the epidemic, and for raising money at that time it was found necessary to sell part of the common lands (Glas. Rec. i. pp. 118-20).

In protocol No. 2799 reference was made to sasine being given on the public street because access could not be had to the property on account of the pest. John Wilson, the owner of the property, was at that time kept in seclusion, as appears from an entry in the 318. Council Records, dated 9 December, 1585:—“In presers of John Grahaue, bailie, compeir John Wil- som, peuterer, burgese of Glasgow, and becaus that the said John wes enclowt with his wyf and familie in his an house, as suspect of the pest, and mycht not, be his awin deit and resignatioun, (infeft) Mergrat Wilsoun, his dochter, in all and bali his fify tenement, bekeyt and leichit, with the pertinents, lyand upon the north syde of the streit callit the Gallowcatt. . . . ¹ The division of common lands referred to in Nos. 2944 and 2948 appears to be that described in a letter dated 6 April, 1569, written by William Walker, steward to archbishop Betoun, in which he tells his master that "a' the borrow muir of Glasgow, on the south syde of the towe, and a' Garngadhill on the north part of the towe, ar distribut be proved, baillies and communite of the towe to the inhabitaris thairof, every ane his awin portioun conform to his degrie " (Macgower's Old Glasgow (1880), p. 177. See also protocol No. 1606 and foot. note). Previous to 1569, Garngadhill appears to have been possessed by the inhabitants as common property, and they must then have considered that it would be more advantageous to have the land parcelled off and converted into individual holdings. The council records for that period are wanting; and accordingly it is all the more fortunate that Walker's letter and the protocols have preserved evidence of the division.

2964. GORDOWN AND SPOUSE—WILKIN. 30 January, 1586-7, 2 p.m.

Mr. William Wallace, bailie, in name of the provost, bailies, councillors and community of the city of Glasgow, gave sasine to John Gordown, citizen, of a ruinous kiln belonging to the community, lying near (prope) the common mill of the said city, with free ingress and egress to the kiln and with the pertinents; and that conform to an act, decree and ordinance of the said provost, bailies, and council concerning the grant and set of the kiln to him in feu-farm. John Gordown paid £100 in money, and he was also to pay 40s. yearly in name of annual rent feu-farm, together with the dry multure (aridam multurum) for all grain and oats (granis et avenis), fired or dried (aris vel siccatis) in the said kiln, or for the grinding of the said grain and oats in the said mill belonging to the community. Gordown was also bound to keep to the utmost the inhabitants of the city in drying their grain and oats in the kiln, as often as need required, and that on the charges of the citizens and inhabitants. And if, through the fault of Gordown and his heirs, the citizens and inhabitants should cease to come to the kiln with their grain and oats to be fired and dried (inconfectis et siccatis), in that case the former should be bound to pay the dry multure for the said grain and oats so abstracted from the said kiln. Gordown and his heirs were also bound to build the said kiln sufficiently within a year and a day, which if they failed to do, then and in that case this sasine of feu-farm should wholly fail and be of no strength, force or effect.¹ Witnesses: David Hall

1 The Herbertsons appear in the protocols as owners of land in Dowhill as early as 1535 (see No. 1233). Riald dail has been explained in footnote to No. 2996.

2 As narrated in protocol No. 1734 the subdean's manse was acquired by Mr. David Cuninghame and Katherine Wallace, his spouse, in the year 1570-1. Cuninghame held the subdeanery for a few years previous to 1577 when he was appointed bishop of Aberdeen (see footnote to protocol No. 842). The above protocol (No. 2996) shows that the right in the manse transferred by Archibald Betoun to Jedeon Murray in 1582 (see protocol No. 2433) consisted of a wadset or security for borrowed money. It is probable that after redemption of the wadset the bishop disposed of the property in the manner intended to be set forth in the next protocol (No. 2997), which, however, has not been completed. The draft of a few charter (likewise incomplete), of which an abstract is printed in the Appendix (No. 2997), indicates that the property was conveyed, or intended to be conveyed, to Margaret Boyle in liferent.

3 The protocol is no further written, a blank page having been left. See footnote to No. 2996.

1 The archbishopric of Glasgow was granted to William Erskine, a cousin of the earl of Mar, by crown charter, dated 21st December, 1585 (Reg. Max. Sig. v. No. 903). Unlike his two predecessors, both of whom were ministers, Erskine was a layman, and consequently the charter effected nothing more than a bestowal of revenues, of which, however, the archbishop was deprived by the act of parliament (1557 c. 8) annexing such temporalities. See further as to Erskine's possession of the archbishopric, in Glas. Charters, i. pp. 125, 134-6.

"Finito libro; sit laus et gloria Christo
Et tribuenda Uni gloria summa Deo."

A. Heyvat."

Stephane Glasgow, burges thar, and Thomas Dikson, sergeant. And that be John Robertoun, bailie to the sudden of Glasgow."

"Tertia November, 1595. Alexr. Hammiltoun of Hugis oblist him necht to dispose the tak of the trene by (i.e., without) the college advys." As will be seen by Glasgow Charters, pt. ii. p. 456, No. 113, the college granted a tuck of the trene to Hamilton on the day of payment.

A mutilated scrap bears reference to the payment of 54s. for "wyne gevyn" to some person or persons and "ther nobill men . . . as Sir William Stewart . . . ."

An order is given by "Robert Rowat and William Conynghame," bailies, in these terms—"Ye shall geif James Lyonis wiff ane writting to Robert . . . pay ten pundis xx. x. for ane demner in the Sinmerhill . . . the provest and us the consell the said day." The annual celebration at the "Sinmerhill" is referred to in one of the footnotes to protocol No. 3248.

Amid much disconnected scribbling there is this Latin quotation:

"Non satis est mundum comenque ascendere mensam,
Ni probus in eunctis conspicere locis."

—It is not enough to go clean and well mannered to table; you must show yourself an honest man in every place. There are also frequent repetitions, in fragments, of the following lines:

"In my defence God me defend,
And in my master God me send,
And gift my hands grace to mend,
And bring my saul till ane gud end."

At the beginning and end of the protocol book there are several pieces of paper, of varying sizes, embracing the documents printed or summarised in the Appendix. Included in the collection are some small slips on which are written what appear to be exercises in Latin composition, corrected by the examiner. The names of the composers, probably students in the college, are appended to the slips, except in one or two cases where the paper is mutilated. One of the slips has been cut in such a way as to sever the lower half of the name, but from what remains it appears to be decipherable as Archibald Wilsoun. Taken in alphabetical order, the preserved names are:—Robert Conynghame, John Donyn, Alexander Douglass, William Dunohe, major, Andrew Hammilton, Claud Hammilton, Robert Harbertsoun, William Hounstoun, James Lounesone, William Livington, John Lorne, Robert Lyndsay, Hector Maug, David Mathie, James Provan, Patrick Schelis, William Spang, Thomas Walker, Archibald Wilsone, and John Young.

Of these curious exercises the following specimens (in which the examiner's × marks the errors) are given, and one is reproduced in facsimile. Owing to some of the papers having been cut at the edges, words in many cases are wanting or incomplete. The same sentences are dealt with in all the exercises, excepting in that of John Lorne, which is in the form of a letter:

"Nequitia nostra celari non potest que nos solicitat plurimis miseros modis. Nec quicquam melius est nobis ut opinor quam capere magnam operam et laborem uno tempore ut citius possumus liberari ex hac carceri: loquax autem ne existimer tacite et tamen vos or remisisci hujus . . . nihil quod nos facimus celari potest.

Sasine given by Mr. Adam Wallace, bailie. Witnesses: Colin Campbell, merchant, citizen, George Mure, merchant, citizen, Archibald Brewhows, smith (\textit{fabro}), citizen, Andrew Farie and Andrew Andirsoun, serjeants.

² These twenty names are in one column, and the four which follow begin at the top of the page in a second column. At the foot of the first column the paper is torn, with the loss of apparently two and perhaps more names. A list of hammermen made up in 1605 consisted of twenty-nine names. A few of these names are identical with those in the above list, and they include Allane Clark, perhaps the hammerman whose surname has disappeared. (See list in Crawford’s History of the Trades House, p. 34).
